Description

Men's jersey brand Briko. The dark brown cycling jersey impresses not only with its stylish sporty appearance, but also with its functional features. Polyester material allows excellent air circulation. The benefit of the men's jersey is also very good thermoregulation, which will ensure that your body does not overheat. A cycling jersey is a guarantee of support when cycling. It goes without saying that high-quality material is used. The narrow cut fits the figure.

The lightweight fabric contributes to an extremely light feeling when worn. Internal silicone on the front and back provide maximum stability. The construction of the collar has been carefully designed to eliminate any friction with the skin and subsequent irritation. The three rear pockets of the cycling jersey are used to store small items. Reflective details increase the cyclist's visibility in poor lighting conditions. The cycling jersey is an excellent choice for cycling trips.
